Quite by chance, I happened to read two quite similar books. Both about bodies being invaded. The first, In the Darkness, That's where I'll know you (2015) by Luke Smitherd starts off with our protagonist Charlie Wilkes waking up inside somebody else's head. What would you do if you that happened?

Which is why it was surprising that when I saw "In the darkness, that's where I'll know you" I mentally took a step back, and really thought about the title. It's... kind of gorgeous, you know? Evocative, yearning, and somehow poetic. And really, it doesn't do justice to the absolute crazy-pants insanity of this book.

The Darkness. The Darkness resided inside Jackie, waiting until his 21st birthday, when it will be able to awaken once again. As Jackie finally became twenty one during the midnight, the Darkness awakened and proceeded to kill a group of thugs sent by Paulie Franchetti. The Darkness also tells Jackie, that he's nothing more than its puppet.

But somehow, Darkness didn't quite fully click with me. I've asked myself repeatedly why, if I loved pretty much everything about it, I can't just start throwing happy neurons at it like Mardi Gras beads. I think that the answer lies in the pacing. I feel like too many parts of this book got dragged down in speculation about what is ...
